Meaningful lectures and various useful comments have been presented. If I were to summarize the issues for the ASEAN logistics field, I would mention the necessity of digitization, congestion in urban areas and other transportation problems, support for maritime and inland transportation, traffic accident countermeasures and safety, and support for value-added services.

To solve these issues, flexible support and coordination to adapt to big changes in the logistics environment are needed. As a moderator, I expect that the JTTRI-AIRO will sort out these issues, conduct research surveys to solve them and, based on the results, there will be discussions at Logistics Symposium Part 2 about solutions for these issues.
